Pasamonia Strikes Swiftly to November and Galy Prompt Help Availe-Many Patal Cases the Past Week-Some Cases of Diphtheria-Br. George W. Hitton's

Famous Specific No. Stor the Concor Colds.
The report of the Board of Health, issued last night, shows that there has been an alarming in-crease in the number of cases of pneumonia and heris during the past week, and that there has also been a large number of deaths from these diseases, making a perceptible increase in the death rate over that of last year.

During the past week many cases of diph-theria have been reported, and there have been more than a score of deaths out of that

There were a large number of deaths fro seumonia; and it is undoubtedly true that but for the very prompt assistance of Dr. Hilton's specific No. 3 in many cases, this number would specific No. 3 in many cases, this number would be thrice as large.

The fact is, this is November—winter is already two weeks old.

And aiready during the past week in New York an unusually large number of cases of pneumonis have terminated fatally. Overhead, underfoot, in the air, everywhere, it is perfect weather for breeding colds and pneumonia. Twenty deaths from carelessness.

For every single fatality might have been avoided by a prompt use of the famous specific No. 3.

For every single fatality might have been avoided by a prompt use of the famous specific No. 3.

Persons should know by this time that pneumonia attacks in this climate are unusually swift and frequently fatal. They do know it, but they are careless. No one can be sure when he leaves home that he will not be delayed in a street car or be forced to att for hours with "cold feet." The most careful, methodical persons get cold. Every one sconer or later gets cold. There is but one safety in this climate. Check the first tendency. Prevent the development of pneumonia. Dr. Hilton's long-tried and proven specific No. 3 is the only known antidote to this deadly, unforcescable weather. These remarkably handly little pellets have for the past two years kept down the death rate from pneumonia in a marked degree.

Such is the statement of boards of health in almost every city and town in this State.

Even so trifling a thing, apparently, as handliness can be slipped into the pocket, has helped to bring about the habit now so widespread of carrying the little sugared pellets everywhere and in all sorts of weather, whether promising or foul. So little inconvenience do the little bottles cause that one may forget all about having them till a shivering feeling or a chilly sensation reminds him to look in his pocket.

At such critical times, when home is perhaps some distance off, a sonse of relief comes upon finding the reinible specific in the depths of their pocket has a few pellets still left in it.

This invaluable, ready-to-use, always-at-hand preventive is at this season doing more good than all the sermons and homilles on health that can be printed. It does not let a cold get any headway. It checks it at one.

Don't sit with your hands folded and let a cold have its run. Take the wonderful No. 3.—Adn. THIRTY-FOURTH STREET ROAD.

Its Officers Accused of Violating an In-junction Granted in 1865.

Horace Russell, in behalf of property owners in Thirty-fourth street who obtained in 1885 an injunction against the construction of the Thirty-fourth Street Railroad, secured an order from Justice Truax of the Supreme Court yesterday requiring the officers of the road and Contractor John D. Crimmins to show cause on Tuesday why they should not be punished for contempt of court for proceeding with building the road, and why they should not be permanently enjoined from further work. The plaintiffs are Alfred L. Loomis, Gilbert M. Speir, Frederick H. Cossitt, Rosalis dgood, Cornelia S. Butler. Jefferson M. Levy. R. Dennison Harris, William T. Luck. John Dewsnap, Margaret G. Colgate, and Maria W. Livingston; but Mr. Russell says that bese parties to the old action he is acting in behalf of other owners of abutting property in the street between Lexington and Sixta avenues, where the road is being built. As a part of the punishment of the contempt

That the officers of the defendant road and John D. Crimmins should be ordered forthwith to take up and remove so much of the railroad timbers and other appliances as they have laid in Thirty-fourth street between Sixth and Lexington avenues, restore the roadbed and pavement which they have removed, and restore the said roadbed and street to the condition in which it was before the defendant and the said Crim-mins tore up the pavement and laid down said railroad."

The history of the early litigation is given, which resulted in the judgment of injunction entered on May 14, 1885. It was then shown that the law of that time had not been compiled with in securing a Commission from the tieneral Term, which should determine whether the read ought to be built, and that consents of half the property owners in value had not been secured. On appeal the General Term modified the judgment so that it should not operate against the building of the road, providing subsequent legal authority should be secured.

An application was made to the General Term subsequently for the appointment of a Commission on such consents as had been obtained. The application was denied on July 17, 1885, but the Court of Appeals reversed the decision of the General Term. All proceedings stopped at that. Mr. Russell avers that the only way in which the matter came up thereafter was in the testimony which ex-Alderman Duffy gave as State's evidence at the trial of John O'Neil for bribery on Jan. 28, 1887, where, Mr. Russell er of the early litigation is given testimony which ex. Alberman Duny gave as State's evidence at the trial of John O'Neil for bribery on Jan. 28, 1887, where, Mr. Russell says:

"Duffy testified that the consent of the local authorities to the construction of the Thirty-fourth Street Railroad, without protecting the rights of the city of New York, had been obtained by the defendant by the payment of a bribe of $40,000 to the Aldermanie combine,' so called, through fifm as its agent."

The papert submitted to Justice Truax state that the defendants have not obtained legal authority for the construction and that the old judgment is stil in force. Mr. Russell says that the defendants have obtained consent to tear up the street from the Commissioner of Public Works on application of D. J. Apgar, Secretary of the defendant company. They have also filed consents, but an affidavit of Jabish Holmes, Jr., associate of Mr. Russell, declares that even sided are valid, they fall short of half the aggregate value of the property between Lexington and Sixth avesures by $579,000.

Mr. Holmes says that many of the consents are over ten years old, and that the signers no longer own property on that street. Some of them were dated in 1888, and some have conditions which he says desiroy their validity. One of the consents filed was that of S. T. Meyer for 425 feet of street front which is now covered by the Seventy-first Regiment Armory and a large apariment house. Mr. Holmes says that the northeast corner of Park avenue and this street has belonged for several years to Miss Helen Barney, but a consent for it signed by A. L. Keyes, dated July 9, 1881, has been filed. The consent for the property from 2 to 30 West Thirty-fourth street, but Mr. Holmes says that the northeast corner of Park avenue and this street has belonged for several years to Miss Helen Barney, but a consent for it signed by A. L. Keyes, dated July 9, 1881, has been filed. The consent for the property from 2 to 30 West Thirty-fourth street, valued at $605,000, was given by William Astor, P. Kissa

COL SHEPARD'S REMAINS. Removed from the Vanderbilt Mannels to a Walled-up Grave.

The remains of Col. Elliott F. Shepard, who died on March 24, 1893, were removed yester-day from the Vanderbilt mansoleum at New Dorp, Staten Island, to the Shepard plot, which is near it. The Vanderbilt mausoleum is on high ground overlooking the Moravian Ceme-tery, and from it a view may be had of Sandy Hook and the Highlands. It is one of the meet sightly points on Staten Island. A broad road

THE SHEPARD BARCOPHACUS. leads through the cemetery, under a big stone arch, and up to the little plateau on which the mausoleum rosts. Here are the remains of Commodore Vanderbilt. The Shepard plot is about 200 yards to the east of it.

Mrs. Shepard, Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt, Mr. George Vanderbilt, and several other members of the family left New York at 11 o'clock, and on reaching New Dorp rode directly to the mauoleum. The Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix read a shor service in the mausoleum and then the remains of Col. Shepard and of his daughter Florence of Col. Shepard and of his daughter Florence Vanderbilt Shepard, who died in 1869 when about six months old, were carried to the graves that had been prepared for them. A sarcophagus had been erected just above the graves. On the base of it is cut the name "Shepard." Col. Shepard's remains were lowered into a grave that had been walled down twelve feet deep. A vault had been constructed for the coffin, and this was scaled up. It was raining at the time. Dr. Dix made another prayer and then the party left the graves and drove over to the Vanderbilt farm. A slab of Quincy granite that weighs twenty tons was placed over the remains of Col. Shepard. On its face was cut:

they may rest from their labors and their works
do follow them.—Hev. xiv., 13.

A smaller slab of Quincy granite marks the grave of Florence Shepard. It was nearly 3 o'clock before these stones were in place. Mrs. Shepard and several members of the Vanderblis family paid another visit to them and covered the stones with roses, chrysanthemums, and orphids.

BRAKEMAN MATTHEWS'S DEATH. An Eighty-foot Fati from the Brooklys

Brakeman John Matthews, employed on the Third avenue branch of the Brooklyn Elevated Railroad, shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday morning fell from the structure at the Fortieth street station and was instantly killed. The structure here reaches its highest point, being fully eighty feet from the ground. The brakeman struck head foremost on the trolley rails. Two or three persons saw the brakeman stumbling along the elevated structure just after his train had moved out of the station, but so far as known the young woman station agent was the only person who witnessed the accident. Matthews reported for duty at 5% o'clock at the Union Depot in Thirty-sixth street and Fifth avenue, where the rear car was attached to the train. He was in this car, and Conductor Primrose says he saw him walk through the car in a manner to suggest that he was sick or dazed. Primrose did not miss him until the train stopped at the Forty-sixth street station, when he went back to the rear car and found the right-hand gate of the rear end of the car open. stumbling along the elevated structure just found the right-hand gate of the rear control car open.

It is supposed that when the train reached the Fortieth street station Matthews, while suffering from nauses, got off the car, and that while hurrying to catch up with the train as it started off he stumbled and fell off the structure. He was 30 years old, and he lived in a furnished room at 867 Firth avenue. It was said at the house that heddin not occupy the room on Friday night. He had no relatives in Brooklyn so far as known and the body was taken to the Morgue.

Who Live in the Houses?

"One thing that has always been a mystery to me," said a man, "is who all the people are that live in the houses that rent at a $1,000 a year, and on up to three or four thousand and lots of people here, but there are miles and miles of such houses; thousands of them. Many of them to be sure are boarding houses; many are reuted in parts or in rooms; even an owner living in his own house sometimes rents a room or two or a floor. Some houses are occupied cooperatively by two or more families or parties who prefer the privacy and the appearance of a house to a flat, though as to flats there are flats now that rent for almost if not quite as high prices as houses; and I am quite aware that New York is the permanent or transient dwelling place of people of means from all over the country, and that many of these people live in houses. But still it is a wonder to me, just as it has always been, who all the people are that live in houses that rent at one, two, three, four thousand dollars and upward a year." owner living in his own house sometimes rents

The Spot Where Montgomery Fell. QUEBEC, Nov. 17.-The plain black and white pine board on the face of the rock below the Quebec Citadel, that marks the scene of the heroic death of Gen. Richard Montgomery, on Dec. 31, 1775, will shortly he replaced by a suit-Dec. 31, 1775, will shortly he replaced by a suitable monument, provided by the generosity of his fellow countrymen. American visitors to Quebec, and especially the Montgomery Guards of Boston who were here a few years ago, and a Chicago descendant of the General who was a visitor in September last at the scene of his great ancestor's death, have expressed regret and disappointment at the neglect to appropriately mark the apot where he fell in his galant attempt to take Quebec. It has been intimated that the authorities here will consent to the erection of a suitable monument in memory of their country's invader, and the cost is to be borne by residents of the United States.

THIEF AT THE FIFTH AVENUE. Had a Picklock, and was Found Ran-ing W. C. Endicott, Jr.'s, Room.

A young man, who says he is Charles E. Barron of 214 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, was arrested in the Fifth Avenue Hotel vesterday afternoon, at about 2 o'clock, for breaking into the room of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Endicott. Jr., and stealing sundry trinkets.

Mr. and Mrs. Endicott had been at the hote with Mr. Endicott's father, the ex-Secretary of War. The latter sailed for Europe yesterday on the Campania, and his son and daughter-in-law accompanied him to the dock. Young Mr. Endicott left word that during his absence he wished to have his things moved from room 31 to room 25 on the parlor floor. He left his room locked when he went out, and after the transfer the chambermaid locked the door of room 25 and left the key in the office.

When Mr. and Mrs. Endicott returned and unlocked the door of their new room a well-dressed man was busying himself in the room, and Mr. Endicott, thinking for the moment that he had himself, by mistake, entered the wrong room, said: "I beg your pardon: I've made a mistake," and moved to retreat. The stranger, however, accomplished the retreating act himself in a hurry, before Mr. and Mrs. Endicott had time to get out. He closed the door after him.

Then Mr. Endicott noticed that his travelling hag was in the room, and that it had a long slit in the side and had been emutied. He gave chase. The thief bolted down into the office, Mr. Endicott close behind him, cailing, "Stop that man!" Charles E. Forgee, the special detective of the hotel, who happened to be in the corridor, joined Mr. Endicott. The thief ran through the barroom and down the basement stairs, and was caught in the west hall.

Barron refused to say anything further at the police station than to give his name and address and to say that he was a druggist. The stolen property he gave up when captured. He had abstracted a ring, a pair of scissors, and a few other small articles. He had picked the lock of the door with a wire picklock.

The uahers and doorkeepers were also women.

The performance opened with the usual minstrel circle, with bones and tambo, interiocutors, &c., and so theroughly were all the women "corked" and disguised that recognition was impossible. The management positively refused to give out any names. The entertainment was held in the National Union Auditorium, which was packed almost to suffocation. It was repeated this afternoon and evening.

The Tombs Angel to Look After Mrs. Kora's Property.

Justice Truax of the Supreme Court has granted a motion for the appointment of Mrs. Ernestine Schaffner (the Tombs Angel) committee of the property of Mrs. Fanny Korn, who was acquitted of murder in the General ions on the ground of insanity.

The application for the appointment of a com-mittee of her property was made by her second mittee of her property was made by her second husband, Ernst J. Kurn, who lives at 307 East Ninth street. Mrs. Korn was committed to the Tombe in May, 1803, charged with infanticide. She was acquitted, but declared to be a dangerous person to be at large, and was committed to the Matteawan Asylum. She has one child by a former husband, Edwin Warring, 14 years old, who is now at school at Darlen, Conn., under the tutelage of the Rev. W. S. Rafter.

At the time of her arrest Mrs. Korn owned household furniture of the value of $1,200, diamonds and jewelry valued at $350, and moneys in bank in this city and Brooklyn to the amount of $1,350.

Resented the Portor in a Hurry. Otto Tuskowa, a porter on the steamship San tiago, which arrived yesterday from Cienfuegos, leaped from a starboard port into the Gulf stream on Wednesday, while deranged. The ship was stopped, a boat was lowered, and Tua-kowa was brought back to the ship unconscious. He was resuscitated. The boat's crew was away from the ship only ten minutes.

BARON" GRUNDMAN ARRESTEL

Caught in Boston by a Becoy Letter Sent from Police Headquarters Here. Henry Grundman, 27 years old, was brough to the city from Boston yesterday by Central Office Detectives Krauch and Titus to answer to a charge of grand larceny. He was taken to the Tombs in default of bail. Grundman was in the employ of the Proc Printing Company of 51 Cliff street. On Oct. 13 John C. Jacobson, the manager, sent him to the Chatham National Bank to cash a check for $70. Grundman had the check cashed, but failed to return with the money. He left the city for Boston the same day. Grundman boarded with Mrs. Sattler at 518

East Eleventh street. To her he represented

Grundman boarded with Mrs. Sattler at 515

East Eleventh street. To her he represented himself as a fire insurance agent who was compelled to travel a great deal. He said his salary was frequently delayed in reaching him, and managed to borrow $150 from her in three sums of $50 each. Grundman was known as "the Baron," and on Oct. 3 he caused the arrest of Max Gombossy, whom he charged with violation of the Excise law.

At one time he was employed by Roeder & Seiberg of 1,612 Third avenue. One night he asked permission to sleep in the store. This was granted, and in the morning Grundman disappeared with a $75 violin. He was caught and when arraigned before Judge Martine pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment. In August he was released and went to live with Joseph Blankenberg in First avenue. From this man Grundman stole a gold watch and chain, which he pawned. This was prior to his flight to Boston. When he had been in Boston a short time he wrote to Mrs. Sattler and told her his finances were in such bad shape that he must have $10, assuring her he would return soon and pay her the $10 and the $150 previously borrowed.

Instead of replying at once Mrs. Sattler went to Police Headquarters and made a complaint. Sattler was dictated and sent to Grundmen. It requested that he send has address in order that he $10 Mrs. Sattler was dictated and sent to Grundmen. It requested that he send has address in order that he $10 Mrs. Sattler was going to forward him might not miscarry. Grundman replied that a letter addressed to "General Delivery" would reach him. The Boston police were than notified and when the second decoy letter was sent he was arrested as he asked for it at the general dalivery window.

Gillies's Bry Bock Contract to Be Assulted WASRINGTON, Nov. 17,-The reported suspension of work on the new dry dock at the New York Navy Yard, and the explanation of the contractor, John Gillies, that the Government contractor, John Gillies, that the Government was withholding payments long overdue, created no surprise at the Navy Department, as the cancellation of Mr. Gillies's contract has long been under serious consideration, the official inspectors having repeatedly reported that the work was unanisfactory.

Mr. Gillies has been twice called before Secretary Herbert to show cause why the contract should not be annulied, and on the most recent occasion, last Saturday, Civil Engineer Endicott was sent to New York to make final measurements of the work aircady completed. Secretary Herbert has intimated very clearly his belief that Mr. Gillies must forfeit the contract if the mavy expect over to obtain the dock.
